Santa Ysabel, Ca. - Stan Solleder Goudey, award winning California plein-air painter, will open an exhibit at the Santa Ysabel Gallery, Saturday, February 25.

The exhibit, featuring oils, acrylics, watercolors and graphite, opens with a reception, for the public to meet the artists, from 4 to 8 p.m.

Solleder Goudey, who has made his home in Julian and San Diego, has won first prize in international watercolor competition and has appeared in juried and invitational shows through out the United States.

As an illustrator, Solleder Goudey's work has appeared in Oceans Magazine, Psychology Today and text books.

Solleder Goudey also has designed many homes and buildings in the Julian area and in Arizona.

His work can be found in collections through out the United States, Canada and Europe.

Solleder Goudey said "Aside from some of the technical considerations of my paintings such as concept, color and composition, I feel that any work is successful only to the degree that it is able to express the mysterious aspects of those things that I see and experience. Although my work is representational, it must transcend the subject matter and seek a certain moodiness."
